You can use a combination of macros and keybindings, but if a keybinding and a macro would respond to the same key combination, the keybinding takes precedence. For example, I have, on my druid, my shapeshifts rebound to Shift-1 through Shift-5 (Dire Bear, Aquatic, Cat, Travel, Swift Flight). On the 3 key, I wanted to place my CC spells- Cyclone, Entangling Roots, and Hibernate. My initial ...

Healing is, in our opinion, the most stressful and difficult role to perform. There are a multitude of factors involved in performing well as a healer, but we feel that the most important ones are reactivity (greatly helped by a proper UI setup) and class and encounter knowledge... While part of being a great healer comes from personal skill (which we will attempt to define and dissect below ...

Keybinding is a near-mandatory practice for all classes and specs, and tanking is no exception. As a tank, split second decisions can make or break your raid's chances to succeed. Furthermore, as a tank, you often have to move and rotate your camera, while at the same time using various abilities. You simply cannot do this efficiently if you must use your mouse to click them.

Spam this macro if you think you're about to get jacked by a Rogue or Feral Druid, or if you simply need a target quickly. It makes sure your pet gets on the target ASAP, ruins your target's opener by putting them in combat, places Hunter's Mark on them and sends a bullet or arrow into their dome if they're in front of you. This is pretty much the same target enemy macro I've been ...
